

In English this week, we have been studying the use of onomatopoeia and created a different version of Roger McGough's poem 'The Sound Collector'. We then changed the setting of the poem to our school and wrote our own short poems inspired by his work.

In Maths, we have been ordering numbers from 0-1000 on number lines and completed a place value assessment as we move towards our next area of focus, addition and subtraction. Next week, we will be adding hundreds.

In History, we used our fantastic group research findings to write a letter from the point of view of a Viking child who has recently travelled to England. We were really impressed with the children's creative ideas alongside their use of facts learnt in previous lessons- well done to all! We also began to learn about the famous Anglo-Saxon king, Alfred the Great and will be continuing with this next week.

In Year 3, homework will be marked if it is placed in the allocated homework diary box. It is the children's responsibility to make sure they hand their homework in for marking.
